Introduction

These instructions refer to the preparation and printing in the Journal of Mining and Geological Sciences (Volume 62) of the papers of the International Scientific Session 2019, to be held at the University of Mining and Geology "St. Ivan Rilski", Sofia. The maximum length of the reports is 6 (six) pages formed according to these instructions. The first page starts with a title, names of the authors, an organization on behalf of which they are presented, a code and a city, an e-mail, a bilingual summary and text. Font Arial Narrow is used to write the text. The report is formed on pages A4 (210x297 mm). The empty fields on each page are as follows: Page Setup: top 18 mm, bottom 22 mm, left 20 mm, right 20 mm; Paragraph: Line spacing - Single; Alignment - Justified.

The text is placed in two columns with a spacing of 0.8 cm. Graphics, figures, tables, and photos can fit software in the text, regardless of the program they are made of and in the width of two columns or sent as separate files. Exception (collation of columns) is allowed only when it is impossible to place a table or figure in the standard way.

The main text and spaces before and after the main titles are 10 pt. The first line of each paragraph is offset by 0.5 cm, and the literature is offset 0.5 cm after the first hanging line. There is no blank line between the paragraphs.

Avoid footnotes<sup>1</sup>. If their use is absolutely necessary, they must be advertised in the text by consecutive numbers and in the font size of 8pt.

Text

The texts of the presented documents should contain the following structural elements: Introduction (aim of the study, significance, purpose), Basic presentation (methods, results, discussion), Conclusion and References.

The main text is structured in separate sections, possibly separated by their own titles. It should include: the thesis and the hypothesis of the study, applied methods, achieved basic results and discussion. The conclusion should not be the same as the summary.

Subtitles

It is possible to use three-level titles. The main titles (first level) are displayed with bold, 12 pt, left alignment. Leave two blank lines before and one blank row 10 pt after that title.

Second level title

The second level titles left aligned (bold, 10 pt). The title is preceded by a blank line.

Figures, graphs, tables and equations

The figures, charts and tables should be as close as possible to the point of their first citation (Figure 1). The figures are centered within the column. Leave a blank line before and after the figure. The number and the inscription of the figure should be placed below it (example).

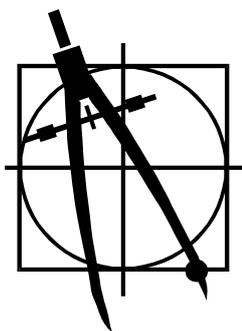

Fig. 1. Text, left alignment (9 pt, bold)

The tables must be as close as possible to the place of their first citation in the text (Table 1). They are centered within the column. Leave a blank line before and after the table. Above the table, the number (upright) and its title (italic) are aligned.

Table 1. Text for the table (10 pt, italic)

Number	Point	Value
5	987	784

The equations are plotted with Equation 3.0 on a separate line and separated from the text with one empty line at the top and bottom. The equations are numbered sequentially and aligned to the left in the column. The equation number is recorded in brackets and aligned to the right of the column.

$$P_i = RQ^2 \quad (1)$$

Acknowledgements. Use a third level title (9 pt).

References

References are cited in the main text by the name of the author and the year of publication, for example: "This result is published by Smith (1993)" or "The data are published by Smith and Jones (1993), as well as by Petrov et al. (2015)". If the sources quoted are more than one, they are chronologically listed in brackets (Ivanov, 1983, Davis et al., 1989, 1990a, 1990b, Jones, Miller, 1991). All cited literary sources are recorded in alphabetical order at the end of the report: author(s), year, title, journal, volume, issue, pages (10 pt). The title of journals with the volume number if the source is a journal, as well as the title of the books, reference books and reports, if the source is from a scientific forum, is written in italics. The Cyrillic literature references are listed with the original title, source, and author(s) in Latin letters in the language of the correspondent abstract, if any, or transliterated into English. The original language and the abstract, if any, are specified in brackets, for example: (in Bulgarian) or (in Russian with English abstract). References with Internet addresses as well as fond documents are desirable to be avoided.
